My heart goes out to the families impacted by the recent Hyundai factory raids and to all immigrant families who live with the constant fear of ICE disrupting their daily lives.

No parent should have to worry that going to work may mean not returning home. No child should live with the anxiety of losing a loved one to detention or deportation.

These raids are not isolated events. They are connected to a broader rise in antiimmigrant actions, antiDEI agendas, Islamophobia, misogyny, and bigotry disguised as patriotism. The root is racism and hate. When we ignore or minimize these realities, we allow fear and division to take root.

But apathy, revisionism, and silence will not save us. We must courageously defend civil and human rights. We must center moral principles, not political positioning. Solidarity and bold actions are necessary to create change where all people know they matter. Together we can build communities where every family is treated with dignity and respect. Where each and every one of us feels safe, valued, and loved.

Here is what we can do:

* Stand publicly against racism, antiimmigrant rhetoric, and the rollback of DEI.

* Don't perpetuate marginalization, erasure, and biases by being a revisionist and denying belonging for the comfort of antiDEI racism.

* Support immigrant and worker organizations that provide advocacy and protection.

* Educate ourselves and our communities about the ties between racism, sexism, antiBlackness, and exploitation.

* Vote for policies and leaders who boldly stand for diversity, multiculturalism, inclusion, equity, justice, belonging, and liberation for all.

We are interconnected. What impacts one community will eventually touch us all. None of us are free until all of us are free.

We must also stand strongly, firmly, confidently, stating what many fail to state. The USA is a multicultural, multiracial country. Already, places in the Southwest and South have populations that are predominantly people of color. I am proud to be awake and aware - I'm woke, conscious, and strive for compassion. Yes, we are all connected and we will be supports to each ...more
